

Seeing More Colors: A Guide to a Richer Life

Seeing More Colors takes a fresh look at the teachings of Abraham Maslow, considered by many to be the father of modern psychology. A professor at Brandeis University in the 1960s (I studied with him there), Maslow's approach to psychology was simple, yet revolutionary. He studied the people in this world whom we most admire, then described their characteristics. Among the most important of these qualities are the capacity to shape reality, appreciating the moment, focusing beyond oneself, humor and celebration, and loving and being loved. Using the results of Maslow's studies as a framework, this book demonstrates -with stories, quotations, and photographs- how each of us can lead a more rewarding life. Seeing More Colors is illustrated by my travel photographs from seven continents, as well as stories from my work as an orthopedic consultant to the world champion Chicago Bulls basketball team and the Chicago White Sox baseball team. Every page has a story or a quotation which has had a profound influence on me. Since each chapter is a contained unit, the book can be read one chapter, or even one page, at a time. Seeing More Colors already has readers describing it as a life changer, an inspiration, and a book that resonates more deeply with each reading. Find out how the teachings of Abraham Maslow can help to transform your life.
