

Mystery and Suspense: The Dark Madonna: A Fable of Resiliency and Imagination (Religious Mystery Book 1)

An American neuroscientist becomes embroiled in an international mystery that explores the meaning of miracles. While attending a scientific conference in Poland New Orleans neuroscientist, Dr. Alvaro Cruz, visits Auschwitz and faces the ghosts of his own harrowing escape from Argentinas Dirty War of the 1970s. When he and his wife meet an American artist-priest just outside the entrance of the notorious concentration camp Alvaro is inexplicably drawn to this enigmatic man and his stories about the icon of Catholic Poland known as The Black Madonna and a religious vision he experienced as a young art student. After returning to Krakow Alvaro cant get the comments and demeanor of young Father Stephen out of his mind. When Alvaros colleague invites him to visit the Jasna Gora Monastery where the famed Black Madonna of Czestochowa is housed he jumps at the opportunity. During his visit to the monastery an elderly woman becomes hysterical about the changed appearance of the Madonna, and suffers an epileptic seizure; she insists this is not the real Black Madonna, confirming his own odd sensation that the painting was not authentic! In his obsession with discovering the truth Alvaro begins to piece together fragments of the complex mystery surrounding the icons history. What his findings reveal, the real story of the Black Madonna and the people charged with protecting her, could never have been anticipated. What comes to light is a stunning revelation not only about the painting but also about human frailty and our minds ability to overcome it. Like Bazans previous Alvaro Cruz novel, Una Vida: A Fable of Music and the Mind, The Dark Madonna: A Fable of Resiliency and Imagination is a compelling narrative interplay of religion, science, culture, and art. Where scientific explanation ends and religious mystery begins lies the open
