

How the Grandmas & Grandpas Saved Christmas, Again ... Book II

THEM: Thoughtless, Heartless, Emotionless Machines. At the North Pole, Santa is quickly realizing that childrens toy preferences are changing to electronic gadgets and gizmos-and the days of traditional wooden toys made with hands and hearts may be over. Kids want toys that talk, walk, play games, and do their homework, and Santa does not want any disappointed children on Christmas morning. In order to keep up with the demand, Santa must purchase THEM-thoughtless, heartless, emotionless machines-to help build the electronic gadgets. The problem? The machines are well beyond the elves technology and capabilities, and theyll need help from the grandmas and grandpas. With only seventeen weeks to Christmas Eve, there is much work to do, and itll take a team of grandmas, grandpas, and elves working at a feverish pace to get things running as smoothly as a spinning top. But such a toy-changing decision does not come without challenges and problems, and problem is one word Santa does not want to hear. Hang on to your hat-its going to be a wild ride in elfdom in How the Grandmas & Grandpas Saved Christmas, Again-dedicated to those who believe in the spirit of giving, the magic of Christmas, and Santa Claus himself.
